 The frigare the Dorothea, commanded by Captain Fardella, returned thither from Messina on the 14th, with the confirmation of one earthquake, which had destroyed the city on the 5th; but a ship arrived from Melezzo informs us, that another shock was sels on the 7th, which accompanied with fire bursting from the bowels of the earth, and occasioned by Ætus; which is 30 miles distant, has done more damage than the first, not only to Messina, but to Reggio, Scilla, Bagnara, and Pach. Of the thousands who perished by this accident, were the Prince of Scilla, and the Princess of Gerace, who were upon their territories. As soon as his Majesty was informed of this, all public entertainments were stopped, and prayers ordered to be offered up; the Prince de Calvarulo, Governor of Messina, who was at Court, embarked for his Government; and he was followed (by order of his Majesty) by the Marshall of the camp. Don Pignatelli di Strongeli, with a detachment of infantry, surgeons; interceities, provisions, &c. on board of some ships. The Dorothea accompanies this little fleet.

"The cities of Palma and Seminara are no longer in existence." The episcopal city of Gerace is destroyed. The city of Seilla is buried, and the Prince in attempting to save himself in a boat was drowned. It is impossible to discover where Piazzo was stroated. The few inhabitants who have faved their lives are in a miferable fituation. In Messina, the convent off the Capachins only remains. It is added, that the islands called Lapari, are no longer to be seen.

Extract of a letter from an officer of rank in the army, dated Charlestown, South Garolina, December 12, 1782.

"The evacuation of this place will be finished the 14th instant, and the greatest part of the troops go to New-York. About a thouland are going to Jamaica with Brigadier-General Stuart, that island being thill under the apprehensions of an artack. I am going to New-York, and believe, shall soon have the pleasure of seeing you in Great (I might with propriety now say) Little Britain. Every thing (except the troops) are embarked, and we shall fail in three or four days. The scenes of horror and distress occasioned by this event, beggat all description. To abandon a province of to much real confequence; to abandon elegant homes, sine plantations, and their dearest connections; to seek a scanty subsistence in the barren province of East Florida, from ease, wealth, and even survey here, and all this from the missortune only of being loyal, is a odee druel, inhuman, barbarous, and disgraceful."

HOUSE OF COMMONS, Friday, March 14.

YESTERDAY Colonel Onflow gave notice, that he would, on a future day, make a motion for an humble address to his Majesty, to entreat that he would be graciously pleased to give directions, that the fortress of Gibraltar be given up for an adequate compensation.

CUSTOM-HOUSE BILL. Mr Alderman Sawbridge presented a petition from the patent officers of the Cuftom-house, desiring to be heard by coun-fel, against the bill lately introduced by Mr Chancellor Pitt, for the purpose of abolithing certain obsolete and patent officers in

This occasioned a short conversation between Mr Burke and Sir Joseph Marubey, when the former, as he had before done, declared himfelf extremely jealous of a bill, that appeared to him to be a most dangerous attack upon trade, and likely to be the fource of great public inconvenience, as well as an imme-diate inftrument of the cruellest and most unwarrantable private hardship and injustice.

TOBACCO TRADE.

Sir Herbert Mackworth gave notice, that he would, on Monday next, make a motion with regard to the tobacca laws. Sir Herbert faid, the new lituation of America made it necessary, that fomething should be immediately done upon the subject. That the preamble to one of the most operative acts, relative to the importation of tobacco from Virginia, flated, that the neceffities of that colony called for encouragement to its staple produce on the part of this country; Virginia, therefore, no longer being dependent on Great-Britain, Sir Herbert faid, he thought fome law, to allow the cultivation and growth of tothought some law, to anow the contration and growth of to-bacco at home highly necessary.

Lord Surrey faid, perhaps the Honourable Baronet was not aware, that an act had passed last year, laying such pe-nalties on the cultivation and growth of tobacco, in that part of Great-Britain, called Scotland, as had in fact amounted to a total prohibition. His Lordhip further declared, that he thought the agitating any question relative to tobacco, pending the negotiation of a commercial treaty with the United States of America, extremely improper.

Sir Herbert faid, he was aware of the difficulty flarted by his Hon. friend, but ftill he thought the subject important, and that it could not be brought forward too foon. When it was before the House, they would dispose of it as their wif-dom and prudence should direct.

PROVINCIAL CORPS. Sir Ceil Weay faid, he understood promifes had been given by a former commander in chief to more of the provincial corps, than the five mentioned in the debate of the preceding day, that they should be entitled to rank and half pay, the same as other regiments upon the British establishment. He thought it necessary, therefore, that the whole of that matter should be before the House, for which reason, in addition to the motion already agreed to upon the subject, he begged leave to more,

"That there be laid before this House, copies or extracts of any letters from the Commanders in chief, Secretary at war, or other of his Majesty's Ministers, promising half-pay, or other encouragement, to the officers of regiments or corps raised in North America, or in any of the islands in the West Indies."

General Contrary faid, the Hun. Baronet was so far millaken, that no promise had been given by a former commander in chief. Two promites had indeed been given to the provincial corps at different times, by the Sceretary for the American department, which he had mentioned the preceding evening. The General recapitulated a part of his former argument, and faid, if any enquiry upon the fuljest was accessary, certainly the present ought to pais, in order, as the Ilan Baroout had flated it, to bring the whole of the matter before the House. The motion was agreed to:

MOTINY BIES.

The Secretary at Wer moved, that the House resolve itself inao a committee for the purpose of going through the mutiny

The motion being put and agreed to Mr Ord took his feat ! at the table.

The Secretary at War then explained to the House the sh-foluse necessity of busing a Musing Hill between that and the 24th instant, other vise the bulle army would be under no fort of discipline, and no longer subject so martial law. In order to afford as little ground for objection as possible, Sir George faid, has meant to extend the operation of the new bill to the 24th of April next, and no longer. The House, therefore, could have nothing to dread from such a bill's passing into a law. This was paid attention to, and the bill passed the Continues.

Our readers may rest affared, that though the final hand has not been put to the ministerial arrangements in all the parts of it, yet that the principal departments are actually disposed of, and that the ultimate formation will be announced on Monday next at the levee. The offices already filled are as fol-

The Duke of Manchester continues in the office of Lord Chamberlain; and several others will be left in their posts who have had the prudence to keep to themselves their opinion of the peace. Ibid.

Many coalitions have taken place of late :- For instance, the Duke of Richmond (the avowed patron of parliamentary reformation, and professed enemy of the influence of the crown) has acted in cabinet with the Lord Chancellor, the determined opposer of the first, and strengous advocate of the second. We are forry to hear that Mr Pitt has declared his pur-

God knows! the nation never to much wanted the annuance of good and able men.
Yesterday morning the Right Hon. Lord North went to his Majesty at the Queen's house, and staid for a considerable time; the King afterwards went to the levee at St James's; the Duke of Rutland, Lord Grantham, Lord Sydney, the Secretary at War, and the Lord Advocate of Scotland, attended, but none of them resigned their offices under

Lord Guildford was pelterday at the levee, and had a con-

The crews of the ships had it seems paraded the streets. with bludgeons, in a most turnaltuous manner, to the great dread of the inhabitants, who were under the necessity of continuing cofined to their houses, to avoid danger. Yesterday twenty-sive public and private bills received the royal affent, by committion. The Lords Commissioners, who fat in their robes, were, the Archbishop of Canterbury, Lord Chancellor, and the Duke of Northumberland.

The West-India trade bill, the Gibraltar head-money bill, Mr Whithill's bill, and the Lawton road bill, went through a committee, and were afterwards reported."

The Lord Advocate, in speaking on the bill for opening the trade with America, admitted that some inconveniencies would arise from the intercourse of America with the West-Indies, but this was owing to our new fituation .- He could affure the House, that he had an opportunity of knowing the fentiments of the most respectable merchants in Glasgow, who all admit-ted, that certain inconveniencies would arise, but that nevertheless they highly approved of the bill, and thought the House would be mad if they did not pass it immediately. His Lord-fhip then proposed to lease out fix clauses of the bill, and insert

Sir Grey Copper argued against the intercourse of America with the West-Indies, as highly destructive to the trade, manufactures and shipping of this country. One thing had fallen from the learned Lord, which, if founded, he was ready to bow affent to, and give up all farther argument. The learned Lord had faid, that the merchants of Glasgow (gentlemen than whom there were none more competent to instruct that House, gentlemen of high authority, in all matters of commerce and navigation) had approved of the bill, and thought Parliament would be mad if they did not pass it .- But how was he to reconcile this with the learned Lord's declaration, that he was to move to leave out fix clauses of the bill which the merchants of Glasgow so highly approved? Mr Alderman Wilkes arrended the levee yesterday, and had an audience of his Majesty.

Earl Cornwallis had a private audience with his Majesty before the levee began. This Lordship, it is considently faid, will embark for the East-Indies in a very few days.

Yesterday morning Lord Galway's fait and baggage were fent off to the Tower to be shipped for Ottend. His Lordthip goes by way of Margate, on his route to Ratifbon.
Yesterday the Address of the city merchants, &c. to gratulate the King on the peace, was presented to his Majesty by his Grace the Duke of Chandos.

If ever an event deferred a lafting monument, it is doubtlefs that of the American war, and the achoowledgment of their independence, which followed it. In confequence of this, Dr Franklin has fruck a medal relative to these events. It represents Hercules in his cradle, strangling two serpents; a leopard, amazed at his strength, is ready to fall upon him; he is repulsed by France, who, under the sigure of Minery, turns her shield, on which are three sleurs de lis, towards him. At bottom, are the years 1777, and 1781, epochs of the captulations of the armies of Burgayne and Cornwallis, represented by the two ferpents. On the other fide is Liberty, emblematically pourtrayed by a fine woman ;and in the exergue, Libertas Americana.

This day the High Court of Justiciary proceeded to take ih-This day the High Court of Juliferary proceeded to take into confideration, a bill of advocation at the inflance of Henry Young and James Wemyls of a criminal complaint, brought against them before the Magistrascs of Edinburgh, at the inslance of the Procurator Fiscal, concluding for a corporal punishment, such as whipping, banishment, pillory, or imprisodment, in which complaint the Magistrates proceeded without ment, in which compared the diagnitudes proceeded without calling a Jury; and the Advocators contended, that no corporal punishment could in any case be institled by an inferior Judge, without trying the person accused by a Jury. To which it was inswered, that it is competent in all the leviora delica, or smaller delinquencies, and in fact is the practice, to try culprits, and inflict, for leffer crimes, a corporal punishment, fuch as impriforment, whipping, &c., de plane by the Judge, without calling a Jary. As also two bills of advocation for William calling a Jary. As also two bills of advocation for William Ballantine and William Brown, of a criminal complaint before the Sheriff of Edinburgh, at the inftance of the Procurator Fifcal against them, concluding for corporal punishment, in which the Sheriff had proceeded without calling a Jury; in which two bills the fame reasons of advocation were insisted on, that corpobills the tame reasons of advocation were infitted on, that corpo-poral punishment could not be inflicted without calling a Jury. Upon thete different bills and answers counsel were heard at great length, upon Monday last. The Court, upon advising the bill and answers respecting the complaint before the Magi-irates, found that the libel or complaint, by charging a number of riotons acts as committed by the defenders, at various times and places, and upon different persons, for some of which they had been tried, for others they had been only profecuted, and for the halt article one of them had been tried and acquitted; and by blending the whole into one libel, and charging the defenders as guilty of one or all of the riors therein enumerated, it was impossible to discover which of the articles of the libel was meant to be infilted on, or against which of the defenders; and thereby the defenders were deprived of the legal means of making their defence. Therefore they remitted the cause to the Magistrates, with an instruction to dismiss the libel, reserving to the Procurator Fiscal, and all having interest, to insist in a new libel or complaint, containing proper and specific charges against both or either of the defenders, before the Magistrates, or other com-petent court, as accords of the law. With regard to the bills respecting the complaint before the Sheriff, they found, That the libel, which contains a charge of different acts of affaulting, wounding, and maining, whereby the persons therein named were in danger of being murdered; and also charging, that in pursuance of these assaults, the desenders forcibly serzed, and thetruously carried off, certain effects belonging to the persons affaulted, ought to have been tried by a jury; and that the interlocator of the Sheriff, allowing a proof before answer, was irregular, as a relevancy ought to have been found before going to proof. They therefore remitted the cause to the Sheriff, with an instruction to diffinife the libel, referring to the Procurator Fiscal, and all having interest, to inful in a new libel against the defenders, before the Sheriff, or other competent court, as accords. The general point not being properly before the Court, could not receive a judgment; but, upon this eccasion, the Judges delivered their opinions at great length, and unanimosity agreed. That it was competent for sheriffs, Magistrates of Burghs, and other inferior Judges, to trythe leviera delitta, or smaller delinquincies, and to infisit corporal positions therefore, conform to the circumstances of the terms. ces of the case; de plane, without calling a jury : And this they considered as an inherent part of the constitution, and foun ed upon immemorial practice. And in this it was observed in a recould be no danger; because in every case should inferior Judges exceed, either in point of punishment, or in trying ctimes de plana, which ought to be proceeded in, and determined by Jury, plans, which ought to be proceeded in, and determined by Jury, the remedy was eafy and obvious, by applying to the Supreme Court, where redrefs would be given.

Yesterday morning the High Court of Justiciary met, and proceeded on the trial of Gavin Laurie, indirect at the instance of his Majesty's Advocate, for two robberies, and an attempt to comma a third. Mr John Ersteine said a few words on the relevancy of the libel, and was answered by Mr Solicitor General Campbell, when the Court found it relevant to infer the pains of law, pronouncing the usual interlocutor upon such occasions. The Jury being chosen, the examination of witnesses went on, which being finished, Mr Solicitor General summed up the evidence on the part of the Crowu, and Mr William Banantyne Macleod charged the Jury on the part of the pannel, no exculpatory evidence whatever having been offered in his favour. The trial consinued till fix o'clock in the evening, when vout. The trial continued till fix o'clock in the evening, when the Jury inclosed, and this forenoon returned a verdice, finding, by a great plurality of voices, the pannel guilty of all the articles charged in the indictment. Sentence was therefore pronounced, adjudging him to be hanged in the Grassmarket of Edinburgh, on Wednesday the 23d of April next. Lawrie appears to be a very hardened fellow indeed! When he received his fentence; and when the Lord Justice Clerk pronounced a most pathetic and moving exhortation to him, he exhibited tokens of he highest obduracy. His cruelry, too, in the robberies, as well as in the attempt to rob, is almost with out prededent, in this country; while his innate cowardice, upon all these occasions, was truly conflictions. He never faced a man; but always took the opportunity of knocking him down behind him. behind his back, wish a bludgeon made for the purpole, into the great end of which he had run a quaurity of lead, and always repeated his blows after the person was lying on the ground. We are well justified, then, in observing, that the public, at large, are highly indebted to Mr Sherifi Cockborn; for, it may with truth be faid, that it is in a ve y peculiar manner owing to the real and unremitting affiduity of that Magistrate, that society are so four relieved from the assaults and depredations of forder. tions of fo dangerous a miscreant.

"Yesterday se anight, in a violent storm, a ship named the Mary Ann, of New York, laden with sum, tobacco, and Ray Ann, or New Lore, sauch with June to the house of Robert Sibthorpe, Esq. at Dunneany, in the country of Lowth. When the vessel struck, great part of the crew mutinied and quit the ship, being intimidated by the country people, who they discovered affembling on the shore in great numbers, with intent to plunder the vessel, and soon after boarded ber, and threatened to throw the captain and the remaining hands overboard if they made any relifiance. In this dilemma the captain continued for fometime, until he was relieved by the appearance of Stephen James Sibthorpe, Efq; whose Ipirited and prudent conduct on this occasion, cannot be sufficiently applauded. This young gentleman, upon hearing the liccount, immediately armed himself and his servants, and repaired to the wessel, where of including the found great numbers of the country people aboard in a state of including heaving before his arrival broke open the locks, and tore all before them in plundering the vessel, and were preparing to carry away part of the cargo, but Mr Sibthorpe, at the bazard of his life, obliged them immediately to defit, and took one of the ringleaders with his own hands, who had the audacity to make a blow at him with a drawnchanger, and fent for the proper officers, put the thip and cargo under their care, with a fufficient guard to affift the officers, and attended in perfon both day and night, by which means the flip and cargo has been preferred for the benefit of the owners. FOR THE CALEDONIAN MERCURY. To the MERCHANTS of LEITH and other Ports in Scotland, trading to the BALTIC.

A BILL of a most alarming nature to your trade is now in the House of Commons, under the title of "The American Trade Bill," which is intended to admir American articles duty free. If it passes into a law, then adieu to your trade, of Can it be one moment doubted, that if timber, tar, i-ron, ecc. is allowed to be imported from America free of duty, your trade can stand? The duty upon a hundred deals is about 40 s. and upon all the other articles in proportion. Moreover, the Baltie trade carries off immense quantities of British goods. Had it not been for this trade out different Manufactories should have been at a total stand. It is necessary also to obferve, that this is not the only trade that will be hurt by the American Trade Bill: The tagar trade, and the produce of the West Indies, will be also lost to Britain. I am sprry to see that a noble Scots Lord has declared, that, because the Americans did not take the Welf India and carrying trade, from us before the war, they will not be able now. His, Lordhip has not adverted, that formerly the Americans were refinanced by acts of Parliament: Nay, to far did the acts even extend, that they did not allow fugars. Sec. to be exported from one pro-vince of America to another, by fea; in that cale it was impos-fible for the Americans to carry off the Well India trade; see Upon the whole, Gentlemen, from what I have feen of the debates of the House of Commons on this bill, it would apapear, that the members are not judges of the trade of this country; in matters of this kind, they ought to be infructed by the merchants. It is faid the Glafgow people are for this bill in its prefent form. I believe they would be glad of any bill at prefent, on condition the trade was opened, and their fhips cleared out for America; for it must be very provoking to have their ships lying loaded in their harbours, without being permitted to fail, while the Irish vessels, under their very noses as it were, are daily failing, and getting the first and belt of the market: To these reasons is to be attributed their wish for the present American bill passing at any rate. Let their judgment be never so good, and their knowlodge never so extensive in trade, I must differ from them on this occasion, and recommend to the Traders and Merchants of Leith, &c. immediately to meet, and petition against a bill that, if passed in the present of a law, will shortly annihilate their trade;—nay, so much are they interested, that they ought even to employ counsel against it, if necessary. gainst it, if necessary.

Leith, March 19. P. S. It is almost unnecessary to observe, that if the dutier are not got on the Baltic goods, as usual, such is the fituation of the finances of the flate, that duties must be laid on some other articles to supply the deficiency.

All and whole, the Lands and Estate of ORCHARDTON, 19ing in

This estate consists of 3267 acres of Scots measure, whereof there are Almost the whole estate is inclosed, and the arable tarms are subdivised

The sarm houses, which are timbered with the hest forcign wood, and covered with slates, and office-houses, are in the very best order, most of them having been huilt within these three years. The present rent of the citate is 1000 l. Sterling, after deduction of all public birdens, and by subdividing the larger sarms, a considerable rist of rent might be obtained. The tenants are in general men of wealth, and are carrying on great improvements by means of hime marie size shells, sleech, &c. with which the lands are plentically supplied. The natural wood on this effact, is extensive and valuable, and the whole of an age lit for cutting; from a late appreciation it appears, that the value of the wood is upwards of 500. Sterling.

Upon the lands of New Orchardton there has been lately built a large, elegant, and commodious mansion-house, with a complete let of office-houses, and houses for labouring fervants, executed in the most soblantial manner. In creefing and, completing which building, there has been

The House of Orchardton is delightfully situated near the Bay of Histon on the Solway Frith, and has a commanding prospect of the coast of England on the opposite shore. Within the hounds of the classe are several good harbours, fit to receive vessels of considerable burden, particularly one within 300 yards of rhe house of Orchardton; from the Bay near the house, the family residing there are at all seasons plenifully supplied with a variety of fish, which are taken by the sevant, without difficulty, by placing nets at low water.—Among the many alevantages which this estate enjoys, it may be remarked, that is less in a country where the spring and summer are earlier than in any other in Scotland, and the cold and other diffagrecable creeks of the east wind are fearcely selt.

The whole effate holds of the Crown for payment of famil feu, and blanch duties, and flands valued in the cefs-books at 1247 l. Sott, which, with two forty shilling lands of old extent, entitles the proprietor to four freehold qualifications.

The upfet-price of the citate is proposed to be only 24,000 l. Stelling, which, taking into confideration the value of the woods, and of the house and offices, is little more than twenty years purchase of the proposed to the woods.
